200.0 SPECIFIC BREED STANDARDS

210.1 STANDARDS OF EXCELLENCE

The Southdown is unique to producing a high-quality lean market lamb with a minimal amount of feed. It produces a carcass with tenderness and flavor unmatched by any other breed. The general appearance should be active and alert, and at the same time, retain the quiet disposition for which the breed is noted. Compared to the ewe, the ram should be distinctly masculine with a wider muzzle, a bold eye, and overall appearance of strength. The ewe should show more refinement in the head and neck with more width and depth in the hindquarters than in the front quarters. She should have no difficulty in lambing, and her mothering instincts should never be in doubt. It is important to have ewes that are adaptable to your environment that will breed, lactate, and produce desirable lambs.

210.2 HEAD

The head gives any breed its distinguishing character. It should be carried high. The muzzle should be moderate in length. The hair on the muzzle should be gray to brown, not white and not approaching black. Any wool covering in front of the eyes should be short, so that at no time can the sheep be wool blind. It should be emphasized that the modern Southdown should have a moderate amount of wool about the face and eyes. The tear ducts should be free of wool just below the eyes. Ears are moderate in length, should be level, and proportionate to the head size. The optimum ear should be medium thickness and covered with wool. Short hair is acceptable. Slick ears are discriminated against. It is not uncommon to have black or brown pigmentation on the ear. The optimum color of the tip of the nostril should be black, color blue or purple is acceptable and some speckles are not uncommon. Solid pink is to be discriminated against

210.3 FOREQUARTERS

Shoulders should be muscular with well laid in spring of the rib. Shoulders and neck that are not too thick, and head not too wide between the ears to facilitate easy lambing. Flat, wide-topped shoulders should be discriminated against. Forelegs should not be set too wide apart nor should the brisket be so prominent as to indicate wasteness of carcass. Neck should not be overly short and should be well set up on the shoulders and be free from wrinkle.

210.4 BACK AND LOIN

Back is long with more than one half the overall length in the hind saddle as measured from the dock to the thirteenth rib, and level from front to rear. Loin is wide with well-developed loin eye. Animals that exhibit unnatural muscling of the rack and shortened loin associated with the callipyge mutation should be discriminated against.

210.5 HINDQUARTERS

Hindquarters are wider than the forequarters and carry good width to the pin bones. Dock is carried high with an absence of patchiness. There should be good bulge on the outside of the leg to indicate heavy muscling. Depth of the twist due to muscling is desirable. Animals that exhibit a tendency toward a steep hip and unnatural muscling of the leg associated with the callipyge mutation should be discriminated against..

210.6 FEET AND LEGS

Feet and legs should stand wide behind, with correct set of the hocks and pasterns. We should be encouraged to select sheep with less wool on the inside of the upper foreleg and the upper inside back leg, around the crotch and scrotum. Southdown's with longer legs should indicate growth potential. The hoof color should be black, or black with a few white stripes. Total white hooves are discriminated against. A moderate amount of wool on the legs below the knees and hocks is desirable. The hair color on the legs should be similar to the muzzle but could be darker.

210.7 SIZE

Southdown's have always been considered a moderate framed sheep that is well balanced in conformation. Keeping the conformation Southdown's are noted for, the optimum size of a yearling ram in moderate flesh is 225-250 pounds. Optimum weight on yearling ewes should be 160-200 pounds. Breeding stock should be well proportioned, being longer than they are tall. Selecting sires and replacement ewes by measurement of overall length and height at weaning or as yearlings should encourage the genetic development of large Southdown's that are still easy keepers. 210.8

FLEECE AND HIDE

Fleece should be dense and uniform over the entire body. Black spots in the wool are discriminated against. Wool of 1/2 to 3/8 blood, 54-60 and 24-28 microns is preferred. Skin should be light in color, but some speckling on the hide is acceptable. A nice smooth skin is optimum. Wrinkles on the hide are not recommended

210.9 GENERAL

Ewes should have a large udder, but not pendulous. She should be capable of producing and raising twins, particularly after the first year. The ewe should normally be active and productive under average care through her eighth year and often through her tenth year. Rams should be free from stiffness and remain active and vigorous for a similar length of time. Ewes and rams with proper management should require no grain in order to maintain a thrifty condition with the exception of lactating ewes and young, rapidly growing lambs. Southdown's need to produce an optimum size lean carcass. , Southdown's that exhibit evidence of the callipyge mutation should be discriminated against due to long-standing and well documented problems related to carcass quality that carry a negative industry bias. (November 2015) (Not in Borchers but in motion)

310.10 ASSOCIATION APPROVED SHOW POLICY FOR GENETIC CONCERNS

310.11 Any show may adopt the following policy approved by the American Southdown Breeders' Association. Every ram and ewe shown at this show, as well as the following shows; the open and junior shows at the North American International Livestock and Exposition, and the National Southdown open and junior shows, must be a non-carrier of Hereditary Chondrodysplasia (spider syndrome), Ectodermal Dysplasia ("Hairy Lamb Syndrome") and Ovine Dwarfism.

Upon the conclusion of the show, two DNA samples will be drawn from the following animal:

- Grand and Reserve Grand Champion ram and ewe
- Any animal whose placing and individual class has been randomly selected for testing by the Board of Directors.

The first (1st) through fifteenth (15th) placings will comprise the pool from which the randomly selected placings will be chosen. Prior to the judge determining the placings within an individual class that has been selected for testing, an announcement will be made that this class has been randomly chosen for testing as well as the placings to be tested. Two DNA samples will be drawn from each animal, by a breed Association representative, to be tested at a laboratory designated by the American Southdown Breeders' Association. The blood samples will be submitted to the Association approved laboratory for confirmation of whether or not these animals are carriers of Hereditary Chondrodysplasia. There will be no cost charged to the exhibitor. The test results will be sent to the Association and then the exhibitor from the laboratory.

In the case of any controversy involving the test results, the Board of Directors of the American Southdown Breeders' Association will make the final determination as to the carrier status of an individual animal. In making this decision, the Board will consider any evidence presented by the exhibitor as well as any and all other information they deem relevant in making this determination.

Any animal determined by diagnostics to be a carrier of this genetic recessive condition or any exhibitor refusing to permit an animal to be tested will forfeit all awards and premiums won by that animal during the show. The exhibitor will be responsible for returning all ribbons, banners, trophies, and premiums won by the animal individually or as a member of a group of animals in a "group class" (i.e., Pairs, flock).

Anyone who exhibits an animal determined to be a carrier of this genetic recessive condition will be barred from showing Southdown sheep for one (1) year at: the Open and Junior shows at the North American International Livestock and Exposition, the Junior National Southdown Show, and the National Southdown Show.

The membership of the American Southdown Breeders' Association will be notified of any animal determined to be a carrier of Heredity Chondrodysplasia), Ectodermal Dysplasia ("Hairy Lamb Syndrome") and Ovine Dwarfism by appropriate electronic or written communication.

A Southdown market lamb can be shown, but breeding information must be sent in to verify that it is a registered Southdown. If you use a Southdown wether, please identify it on the form by scrapie tag number.

A point record form must be completely filled out, with no unfilled blanks, for each show and forwarded either by email to stephanieformo@gmail.com or postmarked within 14 days of the show to Stephanie Formo (please email for address). The card must be signed by the superintendent of the appropriate show certifying that the junior exhibited a registered Southdown, class size, scrapie tag number and the placing of the showman.
